

BARRY: Do you love her

PATRICK: Yes I love her. That's because we've been together for so long. I have nice memories of those times. But, no, I am not in love with her.

BARRY: Pat are you ready to spend the rest of your life having sex with this one woman? She'll be the last woman you'll see completely naked and be allowed to touch. That's something to think about.

PATRICK: I don't know...I thought I'd know when it was time to get married. I envisioned meeting somebody somewhere, and I thought it was Susan, but then it fades you know? It turns out to be just my imagination. What I'm talking about is real. I mean two people mapping out an eternity in a moment. And we'd sit and have an intimate conversation in some dimly lit room, and we'd both feel there was nowhere else in the world we'd want to be.

BARRY: Jesus Christ Patrick! I mean, that is very romantic, but there is no fucking chance in hell that's going to happen, especially to the likes of you.

PATRICK: You don't believe in true love? You don't believe God has someone out there just for you and he allows a lucky few to be fortunate enough to find one another?

BARRY: How the hell did a fruitcake like you end up as my brother? No, I don't believe in true love. But if there is such a thing as true love, I'm sure God has nothing to do with it.

PATRICK: You're just afraid. You're just afraid to fall in love Barry. Always been afraid of the emotions.

BARRY: Listen, lover boy, we're not on Oprah, talking about me my emotions alright? We're talking about you and Susan.

PATRICK: So what do I do? If I move in with her I'm basically saying yes, yes I'll eventually marry her. Or, do I wait until I find my true love?

BARRY: I could give two shits about you and your true love, but as far as Susan goes she has got to get the axe.

PATRICK: Yeah. Yeah I was thinking that too. But I'm afraid Barry. I mean she is so in love with me, I'm afraid she'll do something crazy like kill herself.

BARRY: Don't flatter yourself Patrick, alright? Nobody is killing themselves over you.

PATRICK: So how do I do it?

BARRY: You came to the right man. It's really quite simple, but the key is finding the right place. I mean I like to meet them at work. There's a lot of people around, they won't make a big scene. Then you don't have to worry about driving them home after you just broke their heart.

Patrick: Yeah. Yeah that's good thinking.